

Self-Teaching Style-K

Learning Focus

The learning focus of the Self-Teaching Style is individual tenacity and the desire to construct one's own learning experiences. This teaching-learning style does not exist in the school or classrooms. This style is governed by the individual's decision-making expectations and desires.

* All subject matter has content that is appropriate for the different teaching styles. Physical activities were selected to more visually convey the decision making concept of each style.