Learner-Designed Individual Program-Style I

Behavior Objectives

When the Learner-Designed Individual Program style is achieved, the following behavioral objectives are reached:

▸ To accommodate individual differences in thinking and performance

▸ To provide an opportunity for the learner to experience increased independence over a relatively long period of time

▸ To exercise perseverance and tenacity

▸ To provide opportunities for individuals to be self-directed

▸ Others